Organisational Background

SharingStories Foundation works with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities to protect, maintain and grow language, stories and cultural heritage. Engaged as a culturally safe partner, we deliver community driven digital arts programs and education initiatives that build capacity for cultural continuity, production and distribution of rich outcomes.

Our creative practice engages elder and child, traditional and modern, oral and digital storytelling, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Indigenous. We listen and work over the long-term to build relationships and a clear understanding of local protocols, sharing expertise to ensure Community Impact Goals are achieved. We work with a Both Ways approach across all aspects of our programming. Over the past 10 years SharingStories has continued to grow and we are very excited to be looking for another Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander executive to join our team.

In 2022 we will continue to run programs with our partner communities as well as celebrate the release of several exciting outcomes that have been in production for over a decade. The Jajoo Warngarra - The Culture Classroom, sharing authentic community produced content with educators across Australia will be launched mid 2022 and the Mungo Stories -Walk Together App, will be available in March. Both are innovative culturally rich new platforms, that return revenue to partner communities.

As we look to scale our work for reach and impact, Strategy and Partnerships Development is an incredibly important role. If this is your skillset and you're keen to work with a team of like minded people, passionate about building capacity for cultural continuity, we'd love to hear from you.

Purpose of Role

The Head of Partnerships and Strategy will work closely with the SharingStories team, particularly the Executive Team, taking a lead role in advocating for the importance of the work. The successful applicant will be responsible for developing and implementing a Fundraising, Partnership and Business Strategy, exploring new opportunities to help us achieve organisational growth and generate revenue for partner communities as aligned with our strategic goals. Strategy development, grant writing, reporting and advocacy are important aspects of this position.
